

□ The trebuchet was invented by the Chinese in the 4th century. It remained in use as a siege machine until the 16th century – well after the introduction of cannons.

It all began one wet day... Granddad suggested that my brother Josh and I look for some interesting books to read in his study. He had hundreds! Some of them were really ancient. While we were looking, a very

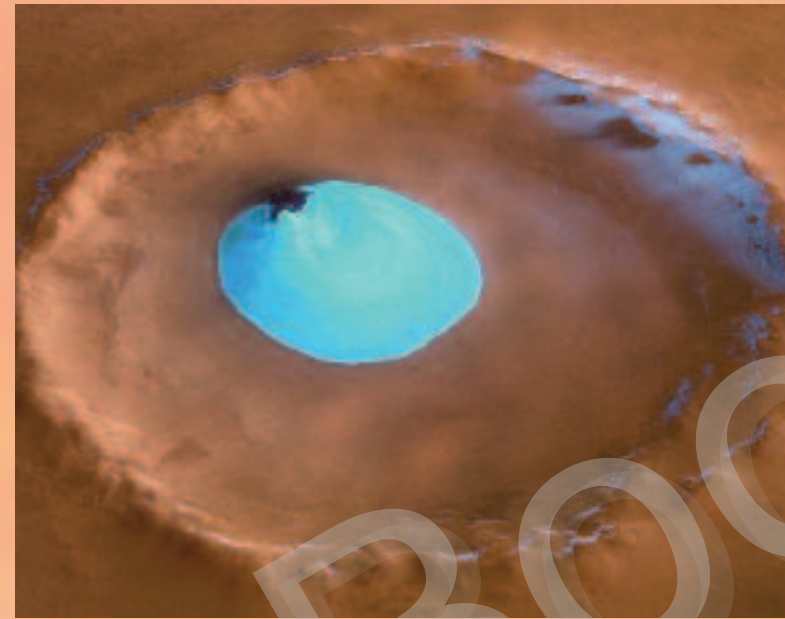

Evidence of water

Granddad suggested that my brother Josh and I look for some interesting books to read in his study. He had hundreds! Some of them were really ancient.

While we were looking, a very strange thing happened. A book fell out of the bookcase all by itself. It was an old book about searching for dinosaur fossils. A page had come loose in the fall. On it was a photo of something That really sparked our interest: an enormous, curved claw, a metre long.

Scary! No one had ever seen such a huge claw before. and damp.

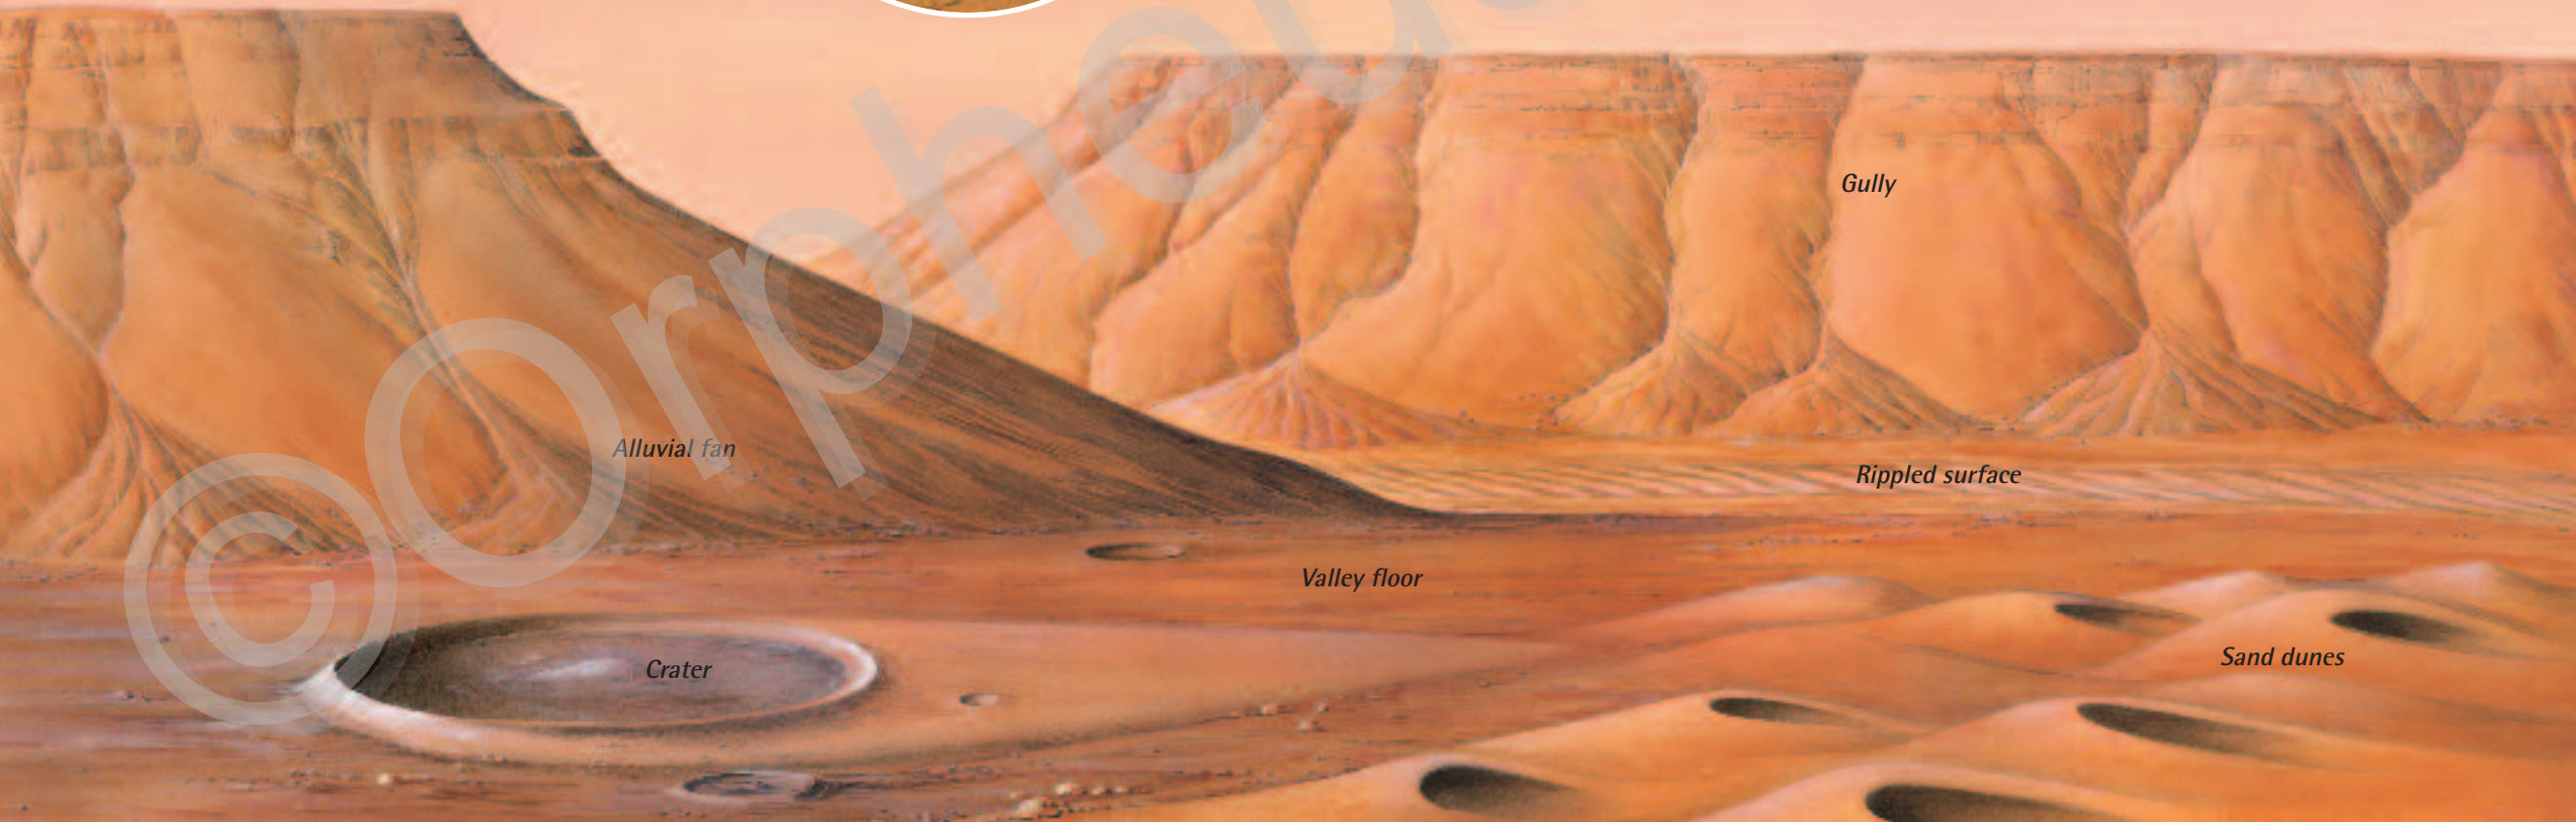

Before I could stop myself, I had climbed through. I was standing in a cave.

I could hear Josh shouting "Maisie!" Then he climbed through after me. The door clicked shut behind us, but Josh had the key in his hand. We crept towards the cave entrance ... Granddad suggested that my brother Josh and I look for some interesting books to read in his study. He had hundreds! Some of them were really ancient. While we were looking, a

It all began one wet day... Granddad suggested that my brother Josh and I look for some interesting books to read in his study. He had hundreds! Some of them were really ancient. While we were looking, a very

It all began one wet day... Granddad suggested that my brother Josh and I look for some interesting books to read in his study. He had hundreds! Some of them were really ancient. While we were looking, a very strange thing happened. A book fell out of the bookcase all by itself. It was an old book about searching for dinosaur

Alluvial fan

Valley floor

Crater

Gully

Rippled surface

Sand dunes

It all began one wet day... Granddad suggested that my brother Josh and I look for some interesting books to read in his study. He had hundreds! Some of them were really ancient. While we were looking, a very strange thing happened. A book fell out of the bookcase all by itself. It was an old book about searching for dinosaur fossils. A page had come loose in the fall. On it

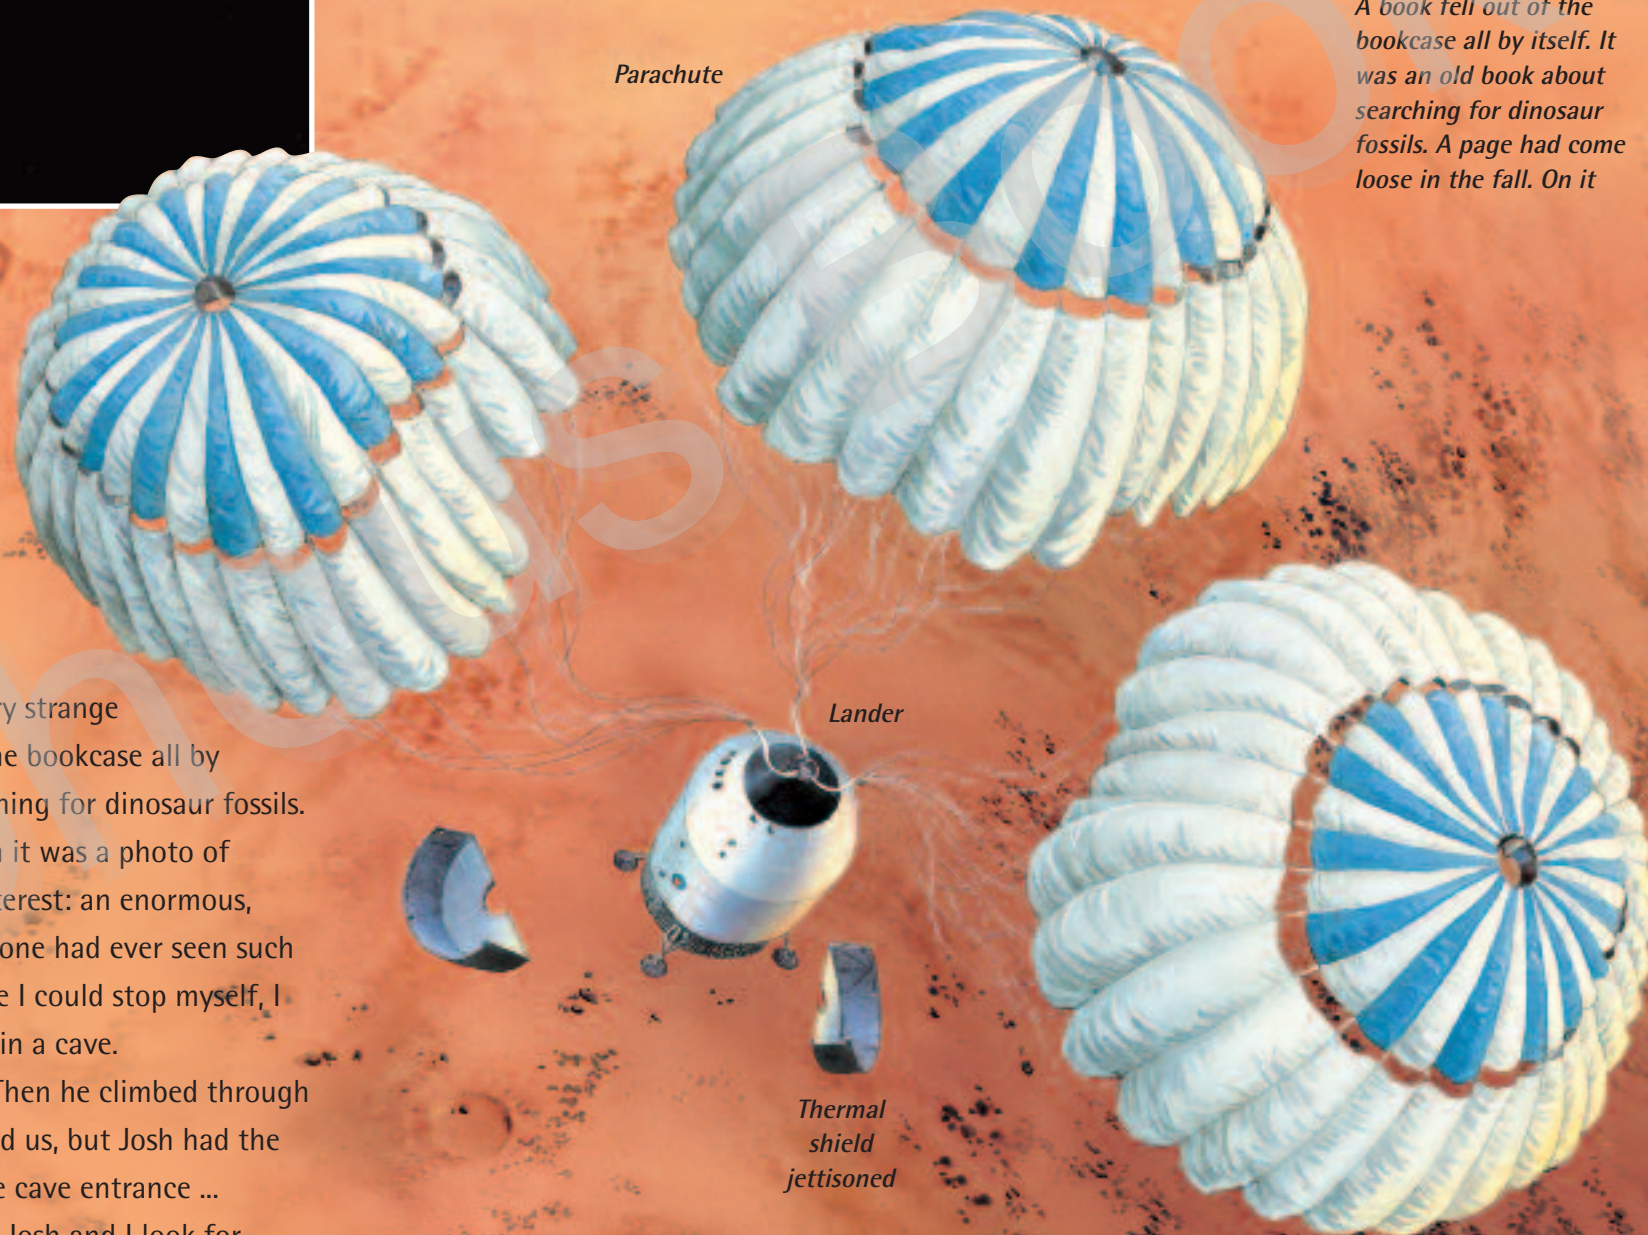

Some of them were really ancient. While we were looking, a very strange thing happened. A book fell out of the A page had come loose in the fall. On it was a photo of something That really sparked our interest: an enormous, curved claw, a metre long. Scary! No one had ever seen such a huge claw before. and damp. Before I could stop myself, I had climbed through. I was standing in a cave. I could hear Josh shouting "Maisie!" Then he climbed through after me. The door clicked

It all began one wet day... Granddad suggested that my brother Josh and I look for some interesting books to read in his study. He had hundreds! Some of them were really ancient. While we were looking, a very strange thing happened. A book fell out of the bookcase all by itself. It was an old book about searching for dinosaur fossils. A page had come loose in the fall. On it

Landing sequence

Granddad suggested that my brother Josh and I look for some interesting books to read in his study. He had hundreds! Some of them were really ancient. While we were looking, a very strange thing happened. A book fell out of the bookcase all by itself. It was an old book about searching for dinosaur fossils. A page had come loose in the fall. On it was a photo of something That really sparked our interest: an enormous, curved claw, a metre long. Scary! No one had ever seen such a huge claw before. and damp. Before I could stop myself, I had climbed through. I was standing in a cave. I could hear Josh shouting "Maisie!" Then he climbed through after me. The door clicked shut behind us, but Josh had the key in his hand. We crept towards the cave entrance ... Granddad suggested that my brother Josh and I look for some interesting books to read in his study. He had hundreds!

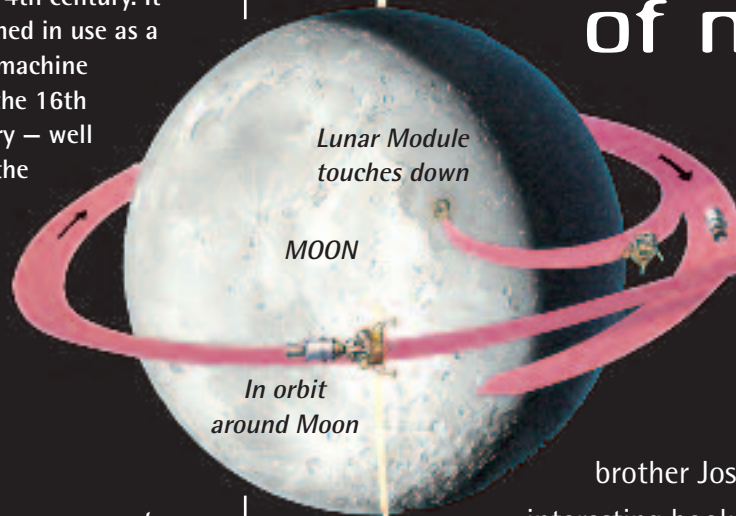

Parachute

Lander

Thermal shield jettisoned

□ The trebuchet was invented by the Chinese in the 4th century. It remained in use as a siege machine until the 16th century – well after the

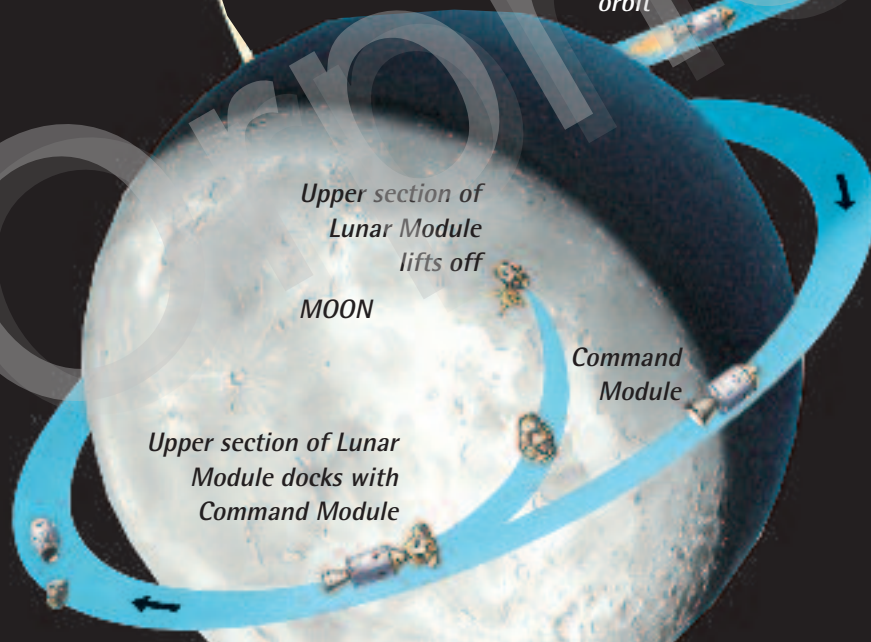

Apollo 11: plan of mission

Lunar Module starts descent

It all began one wet day... Granddad suggested that my brother Josh and I look for some interesting books to read in his study. He had hundreds! Some of them were really ancient. While we were looking, a very strange thing happened. A book fell out of the bookcase all by itself. It was an old book about searching for dinosaur fossils. A page had come loose in the fall. On it was a photo of something That really sparked our interest: an enormous, curved claw, a metre long. Scary! No one had ever seen such a huge claw before. and damp. Before I could

Moon's orbit path

Leaving Moon orbit

Granddad suggested that my brother Josh and I look for some interesting books to read in his study. He had hundreds! Some of them were really ancient. While we were looking, a very strange thing happened. A book fell out of the bookcase all by itself. It was an old book about searching for dinosaur fossils. A page had come loose in the fall. On it was a photo of something That really sparked our interest: an enormous, curved claw, a metre long. Scary! No one had ever seen.

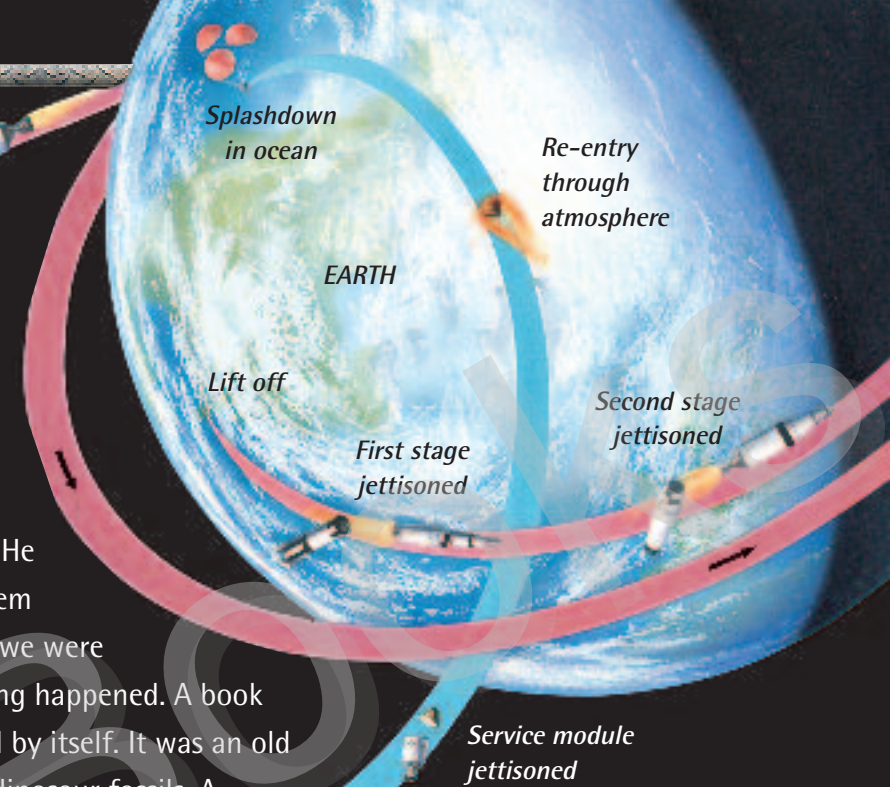

Modules are re-arranged

Outward journey

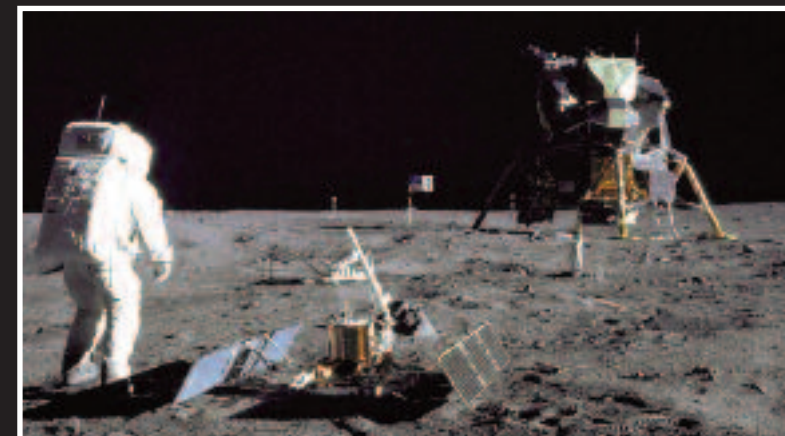

Granddad suggested that my brother Josh and I look for some interesting books to read in his study. He had hundreds! Some of them were really ancient. While we were looking, a very strange thing happened. A book fell out of the bookcase all by itself. It was an old book about searching for dinosaur fossils. A page had come loose in the fall. On it was a photo of something That really sparked our interest.

Return journey

An enormous, curved claw, a metre long. Scary! No one had ever seen such a huge claw before. and damp. Before I could stop myself, I had climbed through. I was standing in a cave. I could hear Josh shouting "Maisie!" Then he climbed through after me. The door clicked shut behind us, but Josh had the key in

It all began one wet day... Granddad suggested that my brother Josh and I look for some interesting books to read in his study. He had hundreds! Some of them were really ancient. While we were looking, a very strange thing happened. A book fell out of the

It all began one wet day... Granddad suggested that my brother Josh and I look for some interesting books to read in his study. He had hundreds! Some of them were really ancient. While we were looking, a very